1. Pony Express National Museum, St. Joseph, Mo.

<http://ponyexpress.org/>

On April 3, 1860, a lone rider left on horseback from the gates of one of the nation's most historic landmarks, the Pikes Peak Stables in St. Joseph, Missouri, headed to Sacramento, California, 2,000 miles west. These brave young souls raced against nature's cruel elements and rugged terrain in an attempt to unite a country separated by distance. Today the stables continue to stand as a tribute to the legend and legacy of the Pony Express and its enduring era.

Come and experience the many exciting, educational, state-of-the-art exhibits conveying the need, creation, operation and termination of the Pony Express. Whatever your age, you're sure to be captivated by the stories and images of an era long passed.

2. Jesse James Home, St. Joseph, Mo.

One block away from the Patee House Museum (features two full floors of exhibits) including a wing designed to look like the Streets of Old St. Jo in the 1860s-1880s is the Jesse James Home is the location at which infamous outlaw Jesse James was shot and killed on April 3, 1882 by fellow gang member, Bob Ford, to collect a $10,000 reward.

The museum features artifacts from Jesse's life and death, as well as those of Frank James and the Ford brothers. Also in the museum is evidence from the 1995 exhumation, which proved with 99.7% certainty that the person killed in this house was, in fact, Jesse James.

3. Shatto Dairy, Osborn, Mo.

Most people are unaware that the J.C. Penney mall store chain once was run by a actual person named James Cash Penney (and not a marketing fabrication). But it was, and you can see his childhood home and a museum here dedicated to his memory.
